

Notes for Jia yu

- Background images work well with the text and text is very legible
- Adjust the width of header bar with the sections and play around with the dividers as well
  - o Create contrast between “gospel of john” and the section titles in the same bar
  - o Font size bigger? Heavier? Small icon next to it?
- Think about how the section titles might look like in the bar when you hover over it
- Centered text makes website very organized and clear
  - o Possibly play around with offsetting questions, verses, important points
- make question text and verses different, while maintaining the same level of hierarchy
  - o ultimately, we want the audience to find the verses /questions right away
- play around with number of columns
  - o left column could be questions or verses
  - o right could be answers and analysis
  - o can still keep the whole thing centered
  - o if it doesn't look that great, you can revert to the old format
- think about how the divider bar from the sections at the top of the page can be incorporated in the body of the website.
  - o Will this be a divider between content and title of the respectable site?
  - o Divider for question and answer / verse and analysis?
  - o Make divider longer and have it be a decorative element?
- Consider linking questions to answers to condense the space
- Linking other sites or the whole book of john (online) on the last page at the end
